

Discover Your Learning Style

Study Skills – Revision & Study

If you know your learning style, you can be a lot more efficient with your study and revision. Keep in mind that people's learning styles can change from high-school, to undergrad, to postgrad, so use this website every so often.

<http://www.educationcorner.com/learning-styles.html>

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the Education Corner website. The page title is "Discover Your Learning Style". The main content area contains the following text:

Each person has different learning preferences and styles that benefit them. Some may find they even have a dominant learning style. Others that they prefer different learning styles in different circumstances. There is no right or wrong answer to which learning style is best for you – or mix of learning styles. However, by discovering and better understanding your own learning styles, you can employ techniques that will improve the rate and quality of your learning.

There are seven key learning styles. These include:

- Visual (spacial) – learning through imagery and spacial understanding
- Aural (auditory) – learning through listening, sound, and music
- Verbal (linguistic) – learning through speech and writing
- Physical (kinesthetic) – learning through hands-on, tactile interaction
- Logical (mathematical) – learning through logic, reasoning and systems
- Social (interpersonal) – preference for learning in groups or working with other people
- Solitary (intrapersonal) – preference for learning alone via self-study

Below we'll explore each of these learning styles in more depth.

The right sidebar features a "Popular Articles" section with the following links and descriptions:

- Benefits of Private Tutoring: Discover what we believe to be the top 10 benefits of private tutoring.
- How to Be a Successful Adult Student: Learn the skills, attitudes and knowledge required to be a successful adult student.
- Obama Calls for New Steps to Prepare America's Children: President Obama Calls for New Steps to Prepare America's Children for Success in College and Careers.
- Getting Motivated for Online Education: Although completing college or learning new skills online can be fun, it does pose some different challenges.
- Facing your Fears of Returning to School as An Adult: Many adults wanting to make a career change or return to college do not do so